REVIEW ABOUT CRC 649 EVENTS

5 and 10 July 2010 Mini Course on Dynamic Programming

On 5 and 10 July 2010 Professor Willi Semmler from The New School for Social Research, New York gave a mini course on the topic of "Dynamic Programming" at the Faculty of Business and Economics. Prof. Semmler's research interests lie in macroeconomics, financial markets, public finance, industrial organization, growth, climate change, and resources. As a guest of the Ladislaus von Bortkiewicz Chair of Statistics and CRC 649 he gave a lecture on "The Use of Dynamic Programming for Asset Pricing and Dynamic Portfolio Decisions." It was integrated into the Statistics of Financial Markets course taught by Prof. Härdle, Barbara Choros-Tomczyk and Song Song. Master students as well as PhD students attending the lecture were given an overview of the theory behind solving a variety of problems in financial economics using dynamic programming as well as tutorials on its practical implementation.

14 – 15 July 2010 Summer Course on Non and Semiparametric Statistics

From 14 to 15 July 2010, Prof. Byeong Park from the Department of Statistics, Seoul National University, Korea delivered a short summer course on the topic: "Non and Semiparametric Statistics," which was organized jointly by CRC 649 and C.A.S.E at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin. Around 20 students from various places in Germany participated. (S2)

20 – 23 July 2010 Chinese Week

The Chinese Week, one of the top-level international conferences of Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, took place at the School of Business and Economics in Berlin in 20 – 23 July 2010. It was part of the 200th anniversary celebrations of Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin and it was attended by Chinese and German researchers, students, and alumni. Several visitors from WISE (Wang Yanan Institute for Studies in Economics) of Xiamen University had been invited to the workshop, including Zongwu Cai, Yongmiao Hong, and Linlin Niu. Other guests came from Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Singapore.

The conference lasted for three days, including a one-day general program and a two-day scientific program. The Chinese Week provided an excellent platform for high-level academic exchange on a multitude of topics. Among others, lectures were held on traders' behavior in the Chinese stock market, "A New Semiparametric Conditional Capital Asset Pricing Model with Variable Selection," "Modelling Realized Covariance by Constrained Factor Models," and General Single-index Models: the EFM Approach." In the course of the conference scientific contacts were developed, student exchange was promoted and the alumni network was strengthened.

CRC STAFF

At this point the Collaborative Research Center 649 "Economic Risk" wants to present Jana Diels, staff member of project B2 "The Valuation of Brands and Brand Strategies."

Jana Diels pursued a Bachelor in International Management at the University of Flensburg from which she graduated in 2007. Between 2008 and 2010 she attended the Master's Program in Business Administration (M.Sc.) at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin with majors in Marketing and International Management. Since July 2010 she is employed as research and teaching assistant at the Institute of Marketing, by Prof. Dr. Lutz Hildebrandt.

Jana Diels wrote her empirical Master Thesis on the problem of consumer reactions to out-of-stock-situations. The topic turned out to be very interesting and of high relevance for risks of the retail market. However, up to now only a small number of experimental studies exist, which is why Jana Diels is now further investigating the topic in the scope of her Ph.D. studies at the Institute of Marketing.
